

ABSTRACT OF THE INVENTION

A system for testing software modules is provided. A user enters parameter values that will be tested into a spreadsheet. The spreadsheet application generates an XML data file including the parameter values arranged into a table. A test shell extracts test cases from the XML data file and converts the data into a testing object for use by a test engine.